Loop Mobile establishes foundation for joint venture to add India to its global mobile community

Loop secures US$500,000 funding for India JV, MOKO users expand around the globe

Sydney 11 February 2008 - Loop Mobile Limited (“Loop”) today confirmed it has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with Radical SoftNet Pvt Ltd, a subsidiary of Telemart Communications (India) Pvt Ltd, to form a joint venture for the Indian market. Radical SoftNet will distribute and operate Loop’s award-winning MOKO mobile community service via its wide range of partnerships with Indian mobile operators. Loop will license the MOKO mobile community service for 49% ownership of the joint venture company. Radical SoftNet will contribute US$500,000 of cash and services for its 51% ownership of the latest mobile networking entrant into the Indian marketplace.

For Loop Mobile’s CEO and Managing Director, Martin Hoffman the introduction of the MOKO mobile community to India is well timed.

“Currently India enjoys one of the world’s lowest tariff structures for mobile phone ownership and it is experiencing extremely rapid take up rates for new handsets – up to five million handsets per month are being sold. In conjunction with this, mobile applications such as music are driving growth rates in value added services to around the 20% mark annually. With the launch of 3G services later this year, we are excited about our prospects with our new joint venture partners,” he said.

The MOKO mobile community will be customised for the Indian market for fully integrated mobile and online capabilities.

“MOKO is different to other social networking communities. It has been specifically designed for the mobile handset and its 2007 additions such as private messaging for images or video and MOKO Music mean that if you have access to a mobile plus MOKO you can create and communicate from your handset. You don’t actually need a PC to manage your profile and content.

Radical SoftNet and Loop are now developing marketing and distribution plans for the launch of the MOKO mobile community.

Radical SoftNet is part of the Telemart Communications group of companies which is the exclusive distributor of Samsung handsets throughout India. It operates a network of 26
